Use the traffic sign code to complete this definition.

is when a person is forced or tricked into leaving their community. Once they leave, they are not free to go back to their home and they are forced to work in conditions they have not agreed to.

Some of those who are trafficked are forced into:

- Construction work
- Domestic work (cooking, cleaning and child care)
- Hotel and restaurant work
- Selling fake DVDs and CDs
- Farm work
- Marijuana growing
- Begging
- Prostitution

Below are several statements about trafficking. Color the circle green if the statement beside it is true. Color the circle red if the statement is false.

1. Traffickers take advantage of people who want to escape poverty.

2. Around the world, boys are likely to have less opportunities than girls.

3. Traffickers promise people a better life elsewhere.

4. It is harder for people to travel and to move across country borders today than it was 50 years ago.

5. Authorities often turn a blind eye to traffickers.

6. Families losing their homes or jobs contributes to trafficking.

7. Some countries want more migrant workers (workers who will move from place to place to do jobs such as picking fruits or vegetables).
